Celebrating 10 Years of Due Diligence:

What have we learned?

The Thirty Billion Dollar Problem

The total economic burden of injuries in Canada is estimated at $29.4 billion annually.

Here's a more detailed breakdown:

- ☐ Direct Costs: $20.4 billion, primarily related to healthcare expenditures.
- ☐ Indirect Costs: $9 billion, stemming from reduced productivity due to hospitalization, disability, and premature death.
- ☐ Cost per Day: This equates to an average of $80 million lost to the Canadian economy every day due to injuries and fatalities
- ☐ Lost Years of Life: In 2018, injuries resulted in the loss of 333,791 years of potential life.
- ☐ Workplace Fatalities: In 2023, 1,057 deaths were recorded in Canada.
- ☐ Workplace Claims: There were 240,131 claims registered with the Ontario Workplace Safety and Insurance Board (WSIB) (WSIB) in Ontario alone, with 179,024 claims allowed.
- ☐ Underreporting: It's important to note that a significant portion of work-related injuries (possibly half) go unreported, meaning the actual figures are likely higher, according to Prevention Link.

Whose Problem is it?

"Everyone who undertakes, or has the authority, to direct how another person does work or performs a task is under a legal duty to take reasonable steps to prevent bodily harm to that person, or any other person, arising from that work or task." Bill C45, Criminal Code of Canada*

"When an innocent victim is harmed through the fault or neglect of several wrongdoers, the victim can collect his or her damage award from one or all of the wrongdoers. If one of the wrongdoers is 50% responsible for the loss,…but is unable to pay the damages, the innocent victim can collect the entire loss from the remaining wrongdoers*, who are "jointly" liable to the plaintiff for the loss."* Ontario Trial Lawyers Association*

The Court of Appeal for Ontario unanimously allowed the appeal and set aside the decision…It returned the question of the City's due diligence defence to the provincial offences appeal court for determination. The City appealed to the Supreme Court of Canada. The Supreme Court of Canada has dismissed the appeal. The City was liable as an employer for breaching its obligations under section 25(1)(c) of the Act. Supreme Court of Canada*

What's the Answer?

Takeaways for employers using third-party contractors:

- ☐ Control is key: Employers must be cautious when exercising control over a worksite, even if a third-party contractor is in charge. While broad contractual powers do not automatically mean control, actively intervening in day-to-day operations can expose an employer to potential liability.

- ☐ Delegation and expertise: Delegating responsibilities to a competent contractor is a key aspect of due diligence. Employers should ensure that they hire experienced contractors with proven safety records, particularly when they lack the in-house expertise to manage projects safely.

- ☐ Contractor evaluation: Thoroughly vetting a contractor's ability to comply with health and safety regulations is essential. Employers should verify safety training, track records, and prior experience before entering into any agreements.

- ☐ Ongoing monitoring: While delegation is important, employers cannot completely relinquish responsibility. Regular monitoring, even in a limited capacity, is crucial. Progress meetings and communication regarding safety concerns can help demonstrate that an employer took reasonable steps to prevent hazards.

- ☐ Documentation matters: Employers should document all steps taken to ensure workplace safety, including contractor evaluations, meeting minutes, and any other relevant communication regarding safety protocols.
